Biography

I am a General Internist with almost 30 years of clinical experience. My interests are in cardiovascular rehabilitation and prevention and women's heart health. I have previously been president of the Canadian Association of Cardiovascular Prevention and Rehabilitation (CACPR) and continue on the board of directors. I have been the chair of the advanced training module committee for CACPR for many years. I am also an associate editor of CV Edge, our Canadian cardiac rehab journal. I have been on several conference planning committees and was co-chair of our spring conference when it was held in Moncton.

I have been a long time educator of physicians and medical trainees as well as the general public and have been a speaker at local, provincial and national conferences. I am bilingual in English and French.
