

Canadian Women's Heart Health Alliance

Training and Education Working Group | Member Profile

Deeksha Kapur

Clinical Research Trainee

Bachelor of Science student in Human Biology and Nutritional Sciences

Events Coordinator at UofT HOPE

University of Toronto

Toronto, ON

Member since 2021

Biography

My name is Deeksha Kapur, and I am currently in my fourth year at the University of Toronto, double majoring in Neuroscience and Nutritional Sciences with a minor in Physiology. I am extremely keen to enroll in the Lawrence S. Bloomberg School for Nursing once I graduate in 2022 and hope to be part of the CWHHA in hopes to learn and grow more in an advocacy and knowledge translation environment, specifically related to women's cardiac health.

I am currently a clinical research trainee working under the supervision of Dr. Monica Parry at the Lawrence Bloomberg Faculty of Nursing and am hoping to bring my unique perspective and my knowledge to this community, in hopes to be able to achieve advocacy work for women's health.