Biography

John Beltrame is the Michell Professor in Medicine at the University of Adelaide in Australia and the Cardiology Academic Lead for the Central Adelaide Local Health Network.

He has strong clinical and research interests in coronary heart disease, particularly in relation to coronary artery spasm and coronary microvascular dysfunction. These have evolved from his postgraduate training at international institutions including, the University of the Sacred Heart in Rome, Kyoto University in Japan, & Harvard University in Boston. He is also the co-founder of COVADIS (Coronary Vasomotion Disorders International Study group), which promotes research into these conditions that often afflict women.
