Biography

Mary Norine Walsh, MD, FACC, earned both her undergraduate and medical degrees from the University of Minnesota. She completed her internship and residency at the University of Texas Southwestern, and her cardiology fellowship at Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis, MO. She served as an assistant professor of medicine in the division of cardiology, as well as an assistant professor of radiology at the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania from 1990 to 1992. Walsh joined what is now St. Vincent Medical Group in Indianapolis, IN in 1992. Her areas of expertise include nuclear cardiology, heart failure, and cardiac transplantation with a special interest in cardiovascular disease in women.

She is the medical director of the heart failure and cardiac transplantation programs at St. Vincent Heart Center, and she serves as a clinical associate professor of medicine at Indiana University School of Medicine. Walsh is program director of the St. Vincent Advanced Heart Failure and Transplantation Fellowship and leads the Ascension Health heart failure service line. She is an associate editor of JACC Case Reports, editorial consultant for JACC: Heart Failure and a reviewer for multiple scientific journals. She is an author of more than 100 articles and book chapters.

Walsh has been active in the ACC both locally and nationally. She was previously elected as president of the Indiana Chapter, and has served on and chaired multiple committees and work groups including serving as the organization's president in 2017-2018.

Walsh's teaching activities include instruction of students, residents and fellows and she lectures frequently on heart failure, heart disease in women, and topics in patient-centered healthcare. She is actively involved in clinical research in heart failure and systems approaches for quality initiatives in the practice setting. She has received numerous awards and recognitions including the Wenger Award for Medical Leadership in 2014 and has been elected by her peers for inclusion in Best Doctors in America annually since 2005.
